

Johanna Panagiotou is doing her doctorate at the Ludwig-Maximilians-Universität Munich (American cultural history and transatlantic studies) and is a member of the LMU Excellent Mentoring Program for young female researchers.

In her doctoral thesis she deals with transnational women's biographies during the Cold War. She is an editor at the scientific publishing house BÜCHNER, has a master's degree in communication psychology (with distinction), speaks five languages, is involved in various scientific initiatives, teaches at institutes for adult education and lectures on socio-political topics.

Prior to her PhD, she made a name for herself as a director of literary projects and as a publisher of bilingual publications.
